Dear Mr. Watson,

I feel very guilty not to have answered your letter of August 15, which I found only a few days ago on my return to Paris.

Basically, I am always interested in anything which has to do with teaching, I feel almost a passion for teaching but my career has never allowed me to take up seriously such an activity, and even now at the age of 80, I am still giving more than 100 Concerts per year, which hardly leaves me 6 weeks per annum for a rest.

However, I am considering earnestly to stop such a feverish state of things, and if I do, I will gladly consider your suggestion and your kind invitation to join your Faculty.

Yours cordially,

Arthur Rubinstein
